The Premise of House of Leaves

At its core, House of Leaves revolves around a documentary film titled "The Navidson Record," which chronicles the life of a photojournalist, Will Navidson, and his family as they move into a house that defies the laws of physics. The house is larger on the inside than it is on the outside, leading to a series of unsettling discoveries and a descent into psychological horror.

Multiple Narratives

The novel is structured as a story within a story, featuring several layers of narration:

1. Johnny Truant: A young man who discovers a manuscript written by an enigmatic blind man named Zampanò. Truant's footnotes and personal reflections provide a modern, chaotic counterpoint to the academic tone of Zampanò's text.
2. Zampanò: The primary author of the manuscript, he meticulously analyzes "The Navidson Record," weaving a complex narrative that explores themes of reality, perception, and the nature of fear.
3. Will Navidson: The main character of "The Navidson Record," whose experiences in the house become increasingly surreal and terrifying as he documents his family's descent into madness.
