Understanding Mediumship

Before embarking on the journey to become a medium, it's essential to understand what mediumship entails. A medium is someone who can communicate with spirits, often serving as a conduit between the physical and spiritual worlds. Mediums can provide messages, guidance, and insights from departed loved ones or spiritual entities.

The Different Types of Mediumship

There are various forms of mediumship, each with its unique characteristics:

1. Mental Mediumship: This form involves receiving information through thoughts, feelings, and impressions. Mental mediums often relay messages verbally.
2. Physical Mediumship: Physical mediums can manifest physical phenomena, such as moving objects or producing sounds, often during a séance.
3. Trance Mediumship: In trance mediumship, the medium enters a deep state of consciousness, allowing a spirit to communicate through them.
4. Psychic Mediumship: This type blends psychic abilities with mediumship, enabling the medium to perceive energies and receive intuitive insights.
