Understanding the Citizenship Interview

The citizenship interview is a vital step in the naturalization process, where applicants must demonstrate their knowledge of U.S. history, government, and the English language. This interview is typically conducted by a U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) officer. Understanding the structure of the interview can help you prepare effectively. Generally, the interview consists of three main components: the English test, the civics test, and a review of your application.

Purpose of the Interview

The primary purpose of the citizenship interview is to assess whether you meet all the requirements for naturalization. The USCIS officer will evaluate your ability to read, write, and speak English, as well as your knowledge of U.S. history and government. Additionally, they will review your application to ensure all information is accurate and complete.
